Influence of the Daily Newspaper.

From a sermon on "Popular Amusements," recently delivered in the Pittsburg Academy of Music, by Rev. Henry D. Moore, we make the following extracts:

"And here I wish to say a few words with regard to the daily press in our community. It is impossible for us to know the extent of the power of the newspaper in moulding the opinions, in fashioning the enterprises, and in determining the daily life of the people. If the newspaper should suddenly drop out of existence, what estimate could we attempt of the loss of moral power the community would sustain?

* * * * * * *

The newspaper is not merely a reflector, a mirror in which the people may see themselves from one day to another; it is not merely a tell-tale of human events transpiring near us and far off; nor merely an informer; but it is an educator, a reformer; it is a power, a moral power in the community; a power creating and molding ideas and opinions among men, determining the motives and daily life of the people. It is an agency, a power of incalculable influence in the families and homes of men, in counting-rooms in warehouses, in work-shops, in stores, in factories, in market-places, in libraries and in studios. The newspaper comes to all, high and low, rich and poor, learned and ignorant, to the men of unceasing toil, and to men of quiet leisure. Very many read little else, and not a few there are who read nothing beside the newspaper. It comes to all, not only as an informer, but as a moral power; exerting—however unconsciously—yet still exerting upon them a marked and controlling influence; and by its daily teachings on all subjects and in all directions it is determining in a marvelous degree, the thoughts, the pursuits, the moralities, the inspirations, the aspirations of daily life.

There is scarcely anything which the community waits for with such eager longings as for the morning or evening paper. Men cannot eat their breakfast, nor enter upon the duties of life, the tasks of the day, without first glancing the morning paper; they retire at night unsatisfied and impatient if they have not unfolded the evening paper. Some super-Christian people may criticise this fact as much as they please, and hint strongly about reading the Bible, or a tract, or some pages of a good book; nevertheless, the fact remains, and the question is, what will you do with it? Men will read the newspaper constantly, and absorbingly, and the newspaper is a power with them. And real Christian men feel that the newspaper is a moral power more than others do.

* * * * * * *

The newspaper is the daily preacher out among the people. It is an efficient preacher, too. Six days in the week it preaches, and never tires in arraying its facts and in pointing its morals. And the most effective preaching from the pulpit on the Sabbath, the preaching which most attracts, holds, instructs the people, is that which takes up the minds and lives of the community just where the newspaper left them on Saturday night, and applies to them the truths of God's Word, and the events of His Providence, and the saving doctrines of the Gospel of the Son of God. We must take men in our congregations on the Sabbath day as we find them, if we would aim successfully at making them, under the blessing of God, what they ought to be. To ignore the influences in the midst of which men are living, is to ignore the men themselves. Our preaching is not divine preaching, but it is human preaching accompanied with divine power. We must meet them just as they are, and become all things to all men, if we would save them. The newspaper, for six days in the week, is a powerful agency in the make-up of human character, and therefore we are solicitous that the paper and the editor shall be objects of first regard among the instrumentalities which are at work among the men and women to whom we preach on the Sabbath.

I do say the daily press is technically Christian or religious. It don't claim or profess to be; and technicalities, however useful they may be in some connections, are, after all, of secondary importance. But so far as the point is concerned, it would be hard to tell in some, and not a few instances, which is the most Christian or religious—the daily newspaper or the so-called Christian or church paper. I would not speak irreverently or unguarded in this matter; but has it not passed almost into proverb, in many instances, that the so-called religious papers are prone to controversies, disputations and party spirit, which have little to do with the spirit and grace of Christian charity, and much to do with hindering the growth of Christians, and in placing stumbling blocks before the world? The religious paper is denominational, in many cases sectarian and often bigoted, and while professedly limited by its denominational interests, yet, in cases, too frequent for the blessing of Christian love, interfering with other parties, other sects and other plans of Christian work, only as it would appear to the uninitiated, with a view to damage them; not scrupling, sometimes, to say hard things which need not be said, and unfounded things which ought not to be said, things calculated to bring opprobrium, and fix stigma upon ministers and churches, who, if they are not quite as good as their revilers, are in a bad case indeed.

* * * * * * *

Now, the secular press, the daily newspaper—not professing to be Christian, technically, and of course, entirely undenominational, and independent in religious affairs—yet opens its columns to all, of every denomination, for information to the people concerning religious plans and movements of all kinds, and in all directions. In the New York daily papers an immense amount of religious intelligence is conveyed to the people, from the statistics and figures of Secretaries of Christian societies, to the tender, fervent and solemn lessons of the living preacher. And this intelligence is not conveyed in what is called the "religious column," but is dispersed throughout the papers, and mixed up with the more ordinary news and affairs of the day. This feature is working itself more and more into the character and conduct of the daily press. Ministers and churches don't begin to realize the advantages of the daily paper to all the interests of Christ's kingdom. Now our daily papers are teeming with accounts of the progress of the noble and stupendous work, now being accomplished in connection with the centenary of Methodism. The intelligence which the community has on that matter is mostly derived from the daily morning paper. Some would claim that such things should be kept out of the morning papers, and would charge that it is aiming at notoriety; but this is all a mistake, a very great mistake. Give all the intelligence of this sort you can to the community, and you are doing a good work for God, for His Church. Let the Church avail itself of the press. The press is at its command. Ministers and churches feel that it is a power for good, if they may only use it; and I believe there is no instrumentality for good, out of the pulpit which is more worth welcoming than the press.

There is no establishment in our land in which there is individual or corporate proprietorship, which is so much the establishment and property of the people as the newspaper. It belongs to the people. It speaks not only to the people, but for the people. The Church itself is not so much of the people and for the people as the press. The Church, and we grieve to say it, is not as open a door as it might be, as it should be. Men and classes in all our communities are not as welcome to our churches and pews as would seem should be the case from the proclamation: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature;" and as Christian Churches, we are too far from acting out the Savior's injunction implied in the parable: "Go into the highways and the hedges and compel them to come in." Let our Churches have open doors, and let our ministers communicate with the people through the press as they have opportunity, and sinking the idea of churchly and conventional respectability out of sight forever, think by what human means, under the blessings of God, can we most surely and profitably reach the masses of the people; and the press, the daily paper, is no instrumentality which, in God's Providence, is made to their hand, and the editor will be found a ready, earnest co-worker in every good word and work. And then, whatever the pulpit and the press unite in saying shall be done for the welfare of the people, for their deliverance from prevalent vices and corrupting influences, and for their elevation to moral dignity, and to Christian character, and to happy prosperity, shall, under the blessing of God, be accomplished."

The Douglas County Tragedy.

The following from our Roseburg correspondent gives a tolerably clear account of the late desperate affair near that place:

ROSEBURG, Jan. 1, 1867.

MR. EDITOR: Our quiet village is the scene of gloom and sorrow, caused by an awful tragedy that took place at Cole's Valley precinct, on the 26th ult. The circumstances, as they are reported, are as follows: There was a difficulty existing between a man by the name of Bennet and one by the name of Colver. They lived three or four miles apart. On the Eve of Christmas a ball was given at Colver's, and one at Champaign's, where Bennett resided. The ball patronized by Bennett was under the patronage of Mr. Frank Barranger. Bennett and his party expected a row, and prepared to have it where it came off. About one o'clock, A. M., on the 25th, the ball at Colver's house closed, and Colver, Hannan, Crow, Forbes and Fitzhugh, all young men, went over to attend the ball at Mr. Champaign's. They got there about 3 o'clock, A. M. In a short time a row occurred between Colver and Bennett on the ball-room floor, which was in the second story of the house. Colver knocked Bennett down, and a terrible scene followed. No one knows exactly how this or that one got hurt; but the fact is, when order was restored, Barranger was found dead. Ashford Clayton was shot in two places, and bruised on the head by a blow from a dragoon pistol; Colver was stabbed through the lungs; Forbes was shot and otherwise injured; Hannah was shot through the body; John Fitzhugh was stabbed in several places; Crow made his escape. It is doubtful whether Forbes, Clayton, or Colver will ever recover. There were only two shots fired by the Colver party, and those accounted for. Fitzhugh did not kill Barranger. Barranger was killed by a shot intended for Colver, who stood near Barranger when he was killed. The two shots fired by the Colver party were fired by Fitzhugh in defence of his life, and they were fired after Barranger was shot, and in an opposite direction from where Barranger was standing. There were eight or ten shots fired altogether. All but two shots were fired by the Bennett party. It is not known that Barranger had an enemy in the room. He was buried by the Odd Fellows. This whole matter will undergo a legal investigation. There was no whisky at either ball.

P. S.—Forbes died at 7 o'clock this morning.

Yours respectfully, J. H.

Another correspondent who favored us under date of 26th ult. gives the following version of the affair, which enters more minutely into the details of the fight, but conflicts somewhat with the foregoing of a later date:

"On Christmas night there was a ball at Champaign's, in the French settlement, at which Frank Barranger was floor-manager. All went on in peace and quietness until Sol. Colver, John Fitzhugh, Bob Forbes, John Hannan and Abe Crow came there, it is said, to break up the ball. When they entered the ball-room they had a few words, when Geo. Bennett struck Sol. Colver in the face with a revolver. Barranger then stepped up to them for the purpose, it is said, of stopping the fuss, when John Fitzhugh drew a derringer and shot him through the heart, after which he never spoke. Ash Clayton, who was fiddling at the time, then drew a knife and stabbed Sol. Colver in the small of the back, under the right shoulder. Abe Crow then rushed in and shot Clayton through the thigh, and another ball struck him on the forehead, the ball not entering the skull, but glancing over it under the scalp and passing out at the back of the head. Crow then drew a knife and struck Clayton across the head with it, inflicting a terrible wound. Fitzhugh, after shooting Barranger, rushed on to Tom Thompson, when the latter shot him twice. Hannan then attacked Thompson, when the latter shot him in the stomach, the ball passing straight through him. Bob Forbes then rushed into the fight, when Thompson shot him down also, the ball entering the right side, ranging back, striking the back bone and breaking his back, then glanced to the right, going down his hip. After the shooting was all over Bob Woodruff went into the melee, when some man struck him over the head with a revolver and laid him out for dead. By Smith also came in flourishing a revolver when, Fitzhugh, who was thought dead, or at least dying, raised himself, and with his bowie knife stabbed Smith, inflicting a dangerous wound.

"Out of the eleven men who engaged in the fight, nine lay dead or mortally wounded on the ball-room floor. I doubt very much whether any of them can recover. After Crow shot Clayton he left, and has not been heard of since. There are eight men after him."—Southern Oregon Press.

UNION MEN IN THE SOUTH.—It may be true that, in some parts of the South—in some favored localities—the reconstructed rebels receive peaceable people from the North with kindness and common decency, but that such treatment is the rule is not by any means probable. All accounts agree in the statement that the people of the South are oppressive and unfriendly, to use the mildest term, toward Northern people, and that the same spirit which mobbed Judge Hoar in Charleston before the war, now prevails, in various forms, throughout the South. A correspondent of the Tribune, at Macon, Georgia, says:

White Union men, as well as freedmen, are still more or less persecuted, and the former are in almost continual receipt of threatening letters.

The following is a copy of a late letter which was shown to me by the gentleman to whom it was addressed:

"MADISON, GA., Nov. 13, 1866.

"SIR: I think it would be very well for you to leave here. We understand that you are persuading the colored people to leave here. Now, if you don't want to be hung, by God, you had better leave here, and that damn soon, for we are determined that you shall not live among us any longer. So I give you warning in time. No such damn rascal shall live here.

MANY CITIZENS.

"We will shout you on sight if you remain here four days longer. You are doing great injustice to the people and to the Government."

I met in Macon, a few days ago, a gentleman from Ohio, formerly a soldier in the Union army, who was driven away from Cuthbert, Ga., in July last, where he had engaged in teaching a freedmen's school. He received a threatening letter almost as soon as he arrived in the place, but paid no attention to it. Finding he was not disposed to leave upon such an invitation, a party with pistols in hand, and in defiance of a Bureau officer and a guard of four soldiers, took him to the railway cars and forced him to leave.

He had been treated in a similar manner in Eufala, Ala., a short time before. In that place a party went to his room in the hotel, and took him out. No remonstrance was made against his treatment in either place by a single individual, except a Judge in Eufala, who appeared to oppose it, not on principle, but because he feared it would furnish "capital for the Radicals!"

GENERAL SHERMAN'S MISSION AS VIEWED BY THE LONDON "TIMES."—Gen. Sherman has been sent on an extraordinary mission to Mexico. Everybody is asking what he is going to do there. There need be but little mystery about this business. The United States undertook to drive not only the French troops but Maximilian himself out of Mexico, and to lend all the support they can give to the Government of Juarez. This may be very impudent on the part of America, and very fatal to the prospects of Mexico; but there is in our day nobody strong or reckless enough to give a decided "No" to American dictation.

The Cincinnati Commercial says the Committee from Cleveland, Ohio, who waited on the President to urge the removal of Mr. Benedict and the appointment of Mr. Armstrong, editor of the Democratic Plaindealer, reminded him of the services the Democracy had rendered his Administration, when the President dumbfounded them with the reply, that the "Democratic party is too dead to be courted."

Sheridan's Report.

The New York Herald thus speaks of General Sheridan's report:

The report of Phil. Sheridan is—like Phil. Sheridan. It reads with all the snap and fire of one of his cavalry raids. The surrender of the rebel commander E. Kirby Smith, bore upon its face, he says, the evidence of double dealing. His real object was to get security for the Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi troops to return to their homes in saf

Johnson and Grant

For months past it has been amusing to note how anxiously the President has labored to cause it to be understood that he is supported in his views by General Grant On every occasion when an important measure is under consideration by himself and his advisers he manages to secure General Grant's attendance, and immediately causes it to be published to the country that "at this meeting General Grant was present, and his views were understood to agree with those of the President " On the day Johnson expected to be waited on by the committee from his traitors' league which held its session at Philadelphia last August, he sent for General Grant to visit him at the White House, and when the committee appeared, they of course found the General there in company with their master Whereon all the Copperheads were greatly delighted and insisted that General Grant was a strenuous supporter of "my policy" But it shortly came out that he had been decoyed to the White House by Johnson on purpose that his presence there on such an occasion might be construed as an endorsement by him of the Philadelphia Convention ; yet the device failed entirely General Grant published a letter sharply informing all concerned that nobody was authorized to speak for him on political matters, or to use his name for the furtherance of any political object Again, when Johnson started on his electioneering tour, he took Grant with him for the purpose of creating the impression that the General agreed with him in his political views While performing the tour, Grant repeatedly said that he was not a politician, but that he attended the President entirely by the latter's order, as the President was his commander in chief But this was not the hardest blow which he gave the Johnson party. He declared in repeated instances during the progress of the tour, that no loyal man ought to vote for any Democrat who had opposed the war for suppression of the rebellion Considering that nearly every Administration candidate in the North was the style of man, this remark of General Grant's did not evince any great desire on his part for the triumph of Johnson's policy. A few days ago the President again got caught in his own snare He called a meeting of the Cabinet to consider the District suffrage bill lately passed by Congress, and with the same purpose in view that had led him to send for General Grant on former occasions, he now summoned him again. This time Johnson got a hint that he will probably remember. Grant said plainly that the clause disfranchising rebels without trial (the clause which the President particularly objected to) was the best part of the bill. In all probability A. Johnson will not invite U. S. Grant to be present at another popular meeting.

True to its Record.

The party which carried the country successfully through our great war for the purpose of preserving the integrity of the Union, is often accused of having proved faithless to the pledges it gave at various times from the beginning of Mr. Lincoln's first term down to the close of the struggle. Particular stress is laid upon its alleged infidelity to the resolution which was adopted by Congress in 1861, declaring that the object of the war was the restoration of the Union and the preservation of the rights of all the States. The late action of Congress, it is asserted, is a departure from this declaration and a violation of this pledge Now they who assert this know that their allegations are not just nor in accordance with facts The restoration of the Union and the preservation of the rights of all the States is still the purpose of the loyal people who by their sacrifices defeated the efforts of the South to establish an independent government. Their purpose is to place the Northern and Southern States on the same footing, subject to the same Constitution and governed by the same laws. They ask no privilege for the North which they would deny to the South But they claim equal privileges for the loyal North, and are determined to have them. The course they are pursuing will result in the restoration of the Union on the only secure basis. The States South will have precisely the same rights as the States North. If the Democratic party had had its way for the past six years the Union would have been irretrievably lost; if it had its way now there would be neither punishment for rebellion nor security for the future. Loyal men are not anxious to fight the great battle over again, and accordingly are determined to make their dearly bought victory secure.

The Copperheads account for so many of their papers coming out in favor of negro suffrage on the hypothesis that they are bought up by the Radicals, who are alleged to have a large fund which they are applying to the work of corrupting and debauching the noble old Democratic party ! So it appears that there are innumerable Democrats who have principles for sale. This is about as good as the declaration which was made by the Copperhead organ of this city last June, to the effect that its party had fully expected to carry the election, but so many of their voters sold their ballots to the Republicans that the glorious old party was defeated ! Their organs have a delicate way of complimenting their party.

CAN'T SWALLOW THE DOSE.—The recent advocacy of negro suffrage by such leading organs of the Democracy as the Albany Argus, Philadelphia Age, Chicago Times, Boston Post, &c , astonishes and makes indignant the rebel journals down South. The Richmond Examiner, in particular, protests against it most earnestly, and at the close of its energetic remonstrance, bitterly remarks: "Whenever we get our stomachs ready for the dose, we will take it from the Radicals in preference to the Democrats We prefer a regular doctor any day to a quack, or one who has just set up in business."

The President sends to Congress a partial list of the names of rebels whom he has pardoned, and informs that body that he cannot send the remainder, as he would not have time to furnish the list before the close of the session This reasonable explanation ought to satisfy Congress. The President is anxious to furnish the list, but the whole clerical force at his command would not be able to complete it in so short a time as two months He should call in the services of Mrs Cobb. She might be able to inform him how many pardons he has granted at her solicitation.

The Copperhead organ near us is concerned lest the result of the action of Congress will be the "consolidation of the Government " "I was called to Washington " says Nasby, " by the President to confer with him on the danger the country was in if the people persisted in centralizin the Government in the hands of Congress instead of diffusin it through the hands of one man which is Johnson "

We are inclined to think that a new hand has got hold of the " official organ," as we failed to find in that paper yesterday the usual articles on the "Resolutions of '98 and the Laws of War "

CHICAGO, Jan 11.—A Washington special says the House yesterday afternoon took up the business of the Speaker's table for the purpose of reaching the Senate bills for the admission of Nebraska and Colorado Last session both of these bills passed the House by a majority large enough to have secured their passage over any veto ; now, however, a party has arisen to keep out any States which the Democracy don't like to have Constitutions The amendment inserted in the bills by Edmunds and accepted by Sumner, does not count many, as they do not in practical successful operations When the bills were reached considerable opposition was manifested and every expedient were resorted to to prevent their passage Efforts were made to send them to slumber in some committee room, where they could not again be reached, for postpone them behind such business as would effectively keep them Both these efforts met the arguments the Democrats were a unit None of them, however, succeeded, and it was thought at one time there was a majority of them in its favor, if it could have been pressed to a vote over the various filibustering tactics. Ashley finally consented to an adjournment, and the bills came up as unfinished business. Both will probably pass by a large majority, but when vetoed their fate is more problematical, the most trouble being anticipated in the House.

Impeachment

The World says regarding the impeachment of the President Contrary to former impressions we are informed to-day that the Radicals are in dead earnest and that the President will be impeached and put on trial Whether he will be convicted is quite likely that there will be no sufficient vigorous Executive till the temper of the Senate is more fully disclosed

The Times says the impeachment cat, let us hope is not out of the bag yet ; The proposition which was to accomplish such wonders has not yet presented nothing more or less to the Judiciary Committee than the simple statement of nearly all the charges Certainly as Executive acts are not punishable upon impeachment of the Government into confusion The Executive is not to be removed on an act of a majority of a House of which every member except four from Jackson downward is equally guilty

The Herald says in reference to these charges that if they are true there is no political ability Johnson sufficient to justify his retention a moment longer in office Whatever charges may be brought against the Republican party from this point of view Weapprehend that without compensatory good results the consideration of this proposition if pursued to trial before the Senate will be mischievous if not disastrous to the Congress the Republican party the Treasury and the financial interests of the country from the violent clash ing and confusion of parties factions and sections that it must inevitably attend a prosecution of this unprecedented attempt to suspend the Executive from his functions with his arraignment as a criminal

PERSON CITY ITEMS.—We have our usual batch of Items from our enterprising Bro Reed in the Enterprise.

Mr J D Miller who has for years been employed in navigating the Willamette above this city has been appointed the agt pointment Especially and Custom or of the Upper Mill Company We are glad to record that Mr John H Belvard who recently had a leg broken by a fall is rapidly recovering He is able to walk about the city with the aid of crutches but does not yet dare attempt to do anything in the line of hunting—At the last meeting of the City Council a proposition was submitted to the Council by Mr [illegible] ted to build a reservoir with capacity sufficient to supply the city with water for both private and public necessities The proposition was referred to a committee which now has the subject under consideration It is confidently hoped that some action may be had for the furtherance of the project A long obstructed alley, through the block opposite the Court House, was recently ordered opened by the Council On last Sunday morning, at about 6 o'clock an attempt was made to fire the Enterprise office but for the vigilance of Marshall Ryan and shortly the structure with its contents would have been laid in ruins As usual by Mr Robert Potter Mr Ryan extinguished the flames before any damage was done We should ever hold them in grateful remembrance for this service. We are at a loss to account for the motive which could have been sufficient to base the least suspicion upon any person who could find the heart to do us so sore an injury That the fire was set is beyond a doubt The match was applied to dry shavings and shingles beneath the porch on the north side of the building and the nature of the material was such as to fan the flames into quick and destructive heat The opening has been used as a repository for wood A few days before Christmas it was thoroughly cleared of all boards and combustible materials and only one wagon load of bark remained for the knowledge but as there since been informed that for two days previous shavings and shingles were seen there This is an mysterious to us, as it is singular who could have applied the match. When Mr Ryan discovered the fire he was nearly at the extreme southern end of Main street—and seeing the reflection upon the brick building of Messrs J H Milne and J Myers & Bro hastened to the spot and was fortunately in time to prevent a conflagration, as above stated.—The Enterprise mentions an accidental but very interesting meeting, of several pioneers of Oregon, at the store of Chapman Bros the day last week, among whom, it says were W W Buck Hyl Brooke T W Moss, J G Campbell, James Stephens and Robert Revell, all old residents who are perfectly capable of telling as good jokes as any of the 49-ers of California".

Mr Jacob Rauch, of this county, on Saturday last brought to this city and left at the post office, as a sample of the products of his farm, a singular plant of the genus Raphanus, the root of which weighed 36½ lbs when taken from the ground It is almost the size of a healthy child at the age of one year Mr Rauch informs us that he has taken up many large sized vegetables the past fall—of various kinds—some of his roots being as large that his youthful son, who is generally useful about the garden, could not lift them into the wagon without assistance—from a mother of similar age

VANCOUVER ITEMS.—The Register furnishes the following—The military ball came off last Thursday evening and was well attended by civilians as well as military Nothing occurred to mar the harmony of the occasion, and [illegible]-sum was realized which will be handed over to the Sisters having charge of the Orphan Asylum — Three or four Hurdy Gurdies came to town the other night and opened their establishment for the boys, as we have been informed. It was kept open all night and well filled by the foolish men, who spend their means in such a manner.—Farmers from the Fourth Plain inform us that their sheep have taken the disease so spoke of the other week as having been imported from Oregon They were in town on Saturday and neighbors to stop and punish this dangerous infraction of the law As legislative evidence of the fact that Vancouver has "gone in," we call attention to the fact that at a public auction of real estate held last week, one unimproved lot of 4x100 feet in size, sold for the paltry sum of $1 25 in U. S. gold coin. It was bought by Crawford, Slocum & Co These gentlemen in all probability will erect upon this lot a large brick building early in the spring for business purposes Of course, Vancouver has "gone in" Weiler that an ingenious mode of evading the marriage law has been discovered in one of the border counties of this Territory. It is well known that no girl under 18 years of age can get married unless they obtain the written consent of their parent or guardian. The Oregon marriage law is also binding, very stringent, three hours under age come from Oregon to this Territory and some friend makes application to the Probate Court for the appointment of a guardian The girl, if over 14, has the right to nominate her own guardian, and she instanter chooses her friend to fill that position Then the guardian he gives his consent to the marriage of his ward, and the happy couple go back to Welfoot rejoicing. Upon the marriage of the ward she of course becomes of age and the matter of the guardianship is settled by the Probate Court. About forty dollars is considered the bill of expense.

MILITARY ITEMS.—From the Vancouver Register, we learn the following Companies "F" and "K," 23d Infantry U S. A. are in San Francisco Harbor awaiting the arrival of the wishes of Major General Steel, before assignment to duty in the Department of the Columbia. Lieut Col. Marshall, 14th U S. Infantry will be relieved to the command of the post at Vancouver this week, as in the command of the District of Boise is Brevet Maj Gen. Geo Crook The proceedings of the General Court Martial lately held at Fort Boise have been approved. Some seven or eight enlisted men were tried for desertion and found guilty A portion of them were also implicated in stealing a portion of the private baggage of Lieut. Western They were severally sentenced to two or three years confinement and will be sent to Cape Disappointment to serve out their sentence .. There are now serving in the Department twenty companies of troops outside of a Detachment of Ordnance men and the band of the 1st Cavalry, of which number nine companies are stationed in the District of Boise These companies average about 56 men each, making an aggregate of about 1,110 enlisted men, which number is increased by Ordnance men and others not on the duty There are eight officers attached to the staff of Commanding General and there are three Paymasters in the Department. Only six of these are on duty eight commissioned officers on duty in the Department The number of military posts or stations in the Department are nineteen, seven of which are in Oregon, seven in Washington Territory and five in Idaho Lieutenant Chas. B. Western and Co F 8th U S Cavalry is now serving Camp Logan Major Haines has relieved all the troops at Cape Disappointment and Ft. Stevens.

ST. HELENS.—The editor of the Vancouver Register has been spending a week at St Helens, and upon return says "This town is still improving. Some fifty new buildings will be built there in the spring. The Columbia have secured the custom of the farmers on Lewis river, Lake river, Columbia bottom Sauvie's Island and the country back of St Helens, and it a claim that merchandise is sold cheaper at St Helens than in Portland The opposition on the lower Columbia is still running and consequently freight is reduced to a very low figure The only drawback to the very rapid growth of the town is considered the exorbitant prices asked and demanded for town lots. Workmen are now in active employ and in a few days they will commence building the large sawmill. An interesting case was tried in St. Helens on Wednesday, wherein one Cooper, a Cowlitz Indian had accused divers and sundry citizens of Columbia county of committing an assault upon him, against the peace and dignity of the State of Oregon The Indian prosecuted the case with a good deal of spirit and ability. We know not the result of the proceeding

OREGON CITY PAPER.—We are indebted to Capt. J D Miller, Secretary of the Oregon City Paper Manufacturing Co [illegible] for a bundle of the paper made at the mills on Friday, accompanied the following note— I send you half a ream of wrapping paper, the first made at Oregon City. We have not yet got fairly under way No press or trimming knife ready, so you will please excuse the clumsy appearance of the paper Yours, etc Mr Thomas J. Carli is the superintendent of the mills The paper is, if pressed and trimmed, would be very superior in appearance as well as in texture

THE FIRST SNOW.—Snow commenced falling freely about 12 o'clock Saturday night, and on yester day morning the streets were covered with a clean white suit of about an inch in depth. A few sleighs were out at an early hour to improve the first opportunity of the season in its little enjoyment of the old, favorite pastime of the winter. It was a sorry make up however for sleighing, and the attempts to make sport of it were rather feeble

THE MONTANA'S FREIGHT.—The steamer Montana took away, on Saturday, the following freight for San Francisco: 6[illegible] lbs fruit, 7815 qr sks flour 25 cases merchandise, 12 bales merchandise 2 trunks 2 crates 2 pkg merchandise 2 cases cheese 1 bbl fruit 6 bbl bbls butter, 15 bbl bbls pork, 5 bbs eggs 14 pkg lard, 7 pkgs sundries, 25 rolls leather, 4 bundles tanned shepskins, 583 hides, 4 green hides, 2 kgs cider, 2 kgs nails 15 bars steel, 23 bars iron.

The Last Man---Samuel Downing, the Revolutionary Pensioner

A correspondent of the Troy, New York, Times gives the following account of a visit to Samuel Downing, one of the last survivors of the soldiers of the Revolution, residing in the town of Edinburg, Saratoga county

The house where, 72 years ago, Samuel Downing first made his home in this State, is a pleasant looking, roomy, two story, farm house, having been enlarged or repaired during the past season Entering, our companion informed Mrs Downing, the wife of the old man's son, who resided with him, of our desire to see the veteran He soon made his appearance and shook hands with us, answering all our inquiries, made in an ordinary tone of voice, as readily as though his faculties were scarcely impaired by the 105 years that have passed over his head He stoops considerably, and uses a cane some to walk about, but he has not entirely lost the spring and elasticity of step that we find in men in the prime of life His hair is white and rather thin, hanging down on his neck, and his skin has a healthy look, as though he might live for some time yet He was suffering somewhat from an accident that took place last spring He was bringing in an armful of wood, when, making a misstep, he fell with the wood on one arm, injuring it so that it was feared at one time, that he had broken it, and much care has had to be taken since to keep him from exerting himself to do chores Until within a year or two he has been in the habit of walking over to Northville and back, a distance of several miles

Mr Downing was born near Exeter, N H November 30, 1761, and is consequently 105 years of age [A neighbor dates his birth back one year, viz, to 1760, on the strength of his own family record, and a tradition that his father and Mr. Downing were born in the same year The account of his enlistment agrees with this tradition, and makes him 106 years old] At the age of 16 years, he enlisted in the army, and was sent with others to guard baggage trains to Springfield, Mass From there he went to New Jersey, and thence returned to West Point Thence he came to Saratoga, where he went through the campaign that resulted in the surrender of Burgoyne After Burgoyne's surrender he went to Schoestady and Johnstown, passing his second winter in the army at the latter place In the Spring he went South, to Peekskill, and was in an engagement at Pine Bridge The third winter was spent at Newburgh, and there he received his discharge, when peace was declared He returned to New Hampshire and married, and in the spring of 1784 moved with his wife to the place where he still lives When the Pension Law was passed, March 18, 1818, he made application and received a pension, his papers having been issued and bearing the autograph of John C Calhoun, as Secretary of War.

He is hale above medium height, of rather stout build, not corpulent, and has generally enjoyed good health On the 30th of November, 1861, when, according to his own account, he attained his hundredth birthday, his townsmen united in celebrating the event by a public meeting, procession and oration. They met at the house of one of the leading citizens in Beecher Hollow, some two miles from his residence, where he had spent the previous night, and forming a procession, they went in sleighs, some 30 or 40 in number, to a neighboring forest, where the old man cut down a hemlock tree, 22 inches in diameter Then the company assembled around a stand and listened to an oration from George B Batchelder After the oration, the procession was reformed and moved to Mr Downing's residence, where he cut down a black cherry tree measuring a foot in diameter, and then digging a hole through the snow and frost planted a small tree

Mr Downing's wife died some years since, and of their 13 children only two survive The son who resides with the old man was away from home, so that we did not see him Three of his grandsons (one of them, Patrolman Downing, of the Second Precinct, of our City,) enlisted during the rebellion and fought manfully to sustain the Government their grandfather had assisted in establishing The old man took a deep interest in the progress of the war for the Union, and sometimes expressed the wish that he was a little stronger, so that he could go and see another campaign It is needless to say after this to which political party he belongs

What an era of history he has lived through, what changes have taken place in this and other countries since he arrived at man's estate? Born parte, who died over forty years ago, after more than twenty years spent in making and unmaking kings, and building up and overturning kingdoms, was born nine or ten years after Mr. Downing, was born nine or ten years after Mr. Downing, and commenced his career about the time when Mr Downing first settled on the banks of the Sacandaga. Canals, steamboats, railroads, and telegraphs have been invented, improved and reached their present advanced position while he has been quietly tilling his farm in sequestered place John Quincy Adams and all the other Presidents who succeeded him were born after Mr. Downing, and some of them after he had attained middle age.

"LIBERAL, JUST AND WISE."—The United States Court for the Northern District of Alabama commenced its term at Huntsville on the 21st of November Judge Busteed, in his charge to the Jury, refers to the constitutional majority in favor of the Constitutional Amendment, and thus commends it to acceptance

"Submission to the clearly expressed will of such a majority is the duty of every citizen, it is more than duty,—it is patriotism Very recently this majority has declared itself in favor of the plan proposed by Congress for the re integration of the States that were in rebellion From this plan that majority will not recede This I believe to be as certain as any future event can be, and I should be false alike to my instincts and to the people among whom I live, if I allowed my silence to give weight to a contrary opinion In my judgment the terms of the proposed amendment are liberal, just and wise, and I would regard their acceptance as evidence of statesmanship and forecast."

A system of telegraphing is now in operation in France, by which exact copies of the original messages are produced at the terminus of the lines, solely by mechanical means The telegram is written on paper coated with a lead colored non conducting surface The ink employed changes every point touched by it to the opposite electrical character Two pendulums at either end of the circuit swing in unison; the upper end of each is divided into many points By this contrivance, the message being passed over these at one end, a current to correspond with the writing is sent, and a fac simile copy on prepared paper held to the vibrating pendulum, is produced at the other extremity

GUERRILLA CAUGHT.—A late Nashville dispatch says

A notorious guerrilla named Pod Diggs has been arrested here and is now in jail He circulated in West Tennessee during the war and is said to be guilty of as many murders of Union men as Champ Ferguson He will be first sent to Henry county to be tried for killing the Sheriff of that county who endeavored to arrest him last spring

A Paris letter says "Leger is dead Do you know who Leger was? The tailor of Napoleon I, the inventor of the grey overcoat the Emperor used to wear the inventor of his little green dress coat, the present uniform of the Chasseurs, and the man who cut the Imperial purple for the immortal son of the French revolution He died at his splendid estate, Ville d'Avry, at the age of 99 This large domain will now be parceled out among his hungry heirs"

A SAINT RETIRING FROM BUSINESS.—The Chicago Republican professes to have trustworthy information that Brigham Young, as head of the Mormons, intends to retire temporarily to a plantation in the sixty miles from Salt Lake City, leaving the charge of public affairs in the hands of his son The movement it is said, is one of a shrewd character, and the fact is that the young Brigham Young, and the fact is to test the ability of young Brigham to wield the scepter before the death of his father shall render final any step which may be applicable in regard to the succession If the manifest ability of the young man to the affairs of government that his father and the elders have, then Brigham's abdication will be [illegible] correct

A correspondent writing from Kanawa Wisconsin says that Senator Doolittle has offered his residence and other property for sale on that city, with the intention of leaving that State It is also said that he is preparing to leave the Senate with the burdens of a foreign mission upon his shoulders

The report of Adjutant Gen Swan of Ohio, shows that the State has furnished 310 000 troops of all arms and terms of service during the war being 6 000 in excess of all calls and that number to her credit on the next war

IMPORTANCE OF HAVING DAVIS' PAIN KILLER ALWAYS ON HAND.
Wonderful Cure of the Rev D L Brayton, Missionary in India who was stung by a Scorpion
Extract from his letter, published in the Baptist Missionary Magazine
For the first time since I have been in India, I have been stung by a Scorpion I went out this morning to my exercises, as usual at early dawn, and having occasion to use an old box on taking off the cover I put my hand on a scorpion which immediately resented the insult by thrusting its sting into the palm of my hand The instantaneous and acute pain which shot through the system is quite incredible, what an awful virulent pain their sting must contain I FLEW TO MY BOTTLE of DAVIS PAIN KILLER, and found it to be true to its name after a few moments relief I saturated a small piece of sponge so that it on my hand, and went about by exercises feeling no more particular inconvenience

They Say

They say—ah! well suppose they do,
It can't they'll say in my defence
Surprise me if you're fond enough
But rubies don't grow out of gold
Wise counsels rise if understood
Who would give what if what they say

They say—but why the tale retrace,
And tell it to the silent wise
No good in speaking scorn
From telling, what may be mistake
And is it not in silence right
To speak of all the best you can?

They say—well, it shall be so,
Why need you tell the tale of woe?
Will it the better world redress
Or make or piping of store loss?
Will it the erring cause to rest
Henceforth to go and sin no more?

They say—oh pause and look within,
See how the heart inclines to sin
Watch, lest in dark temptation's hour
Thou too should sink to reach its power
Pity the frail weep o'er their fall
But speak of good or not at all

Wonders of the Valley of the Amazon.

The chilly weather makes us willing to linger with Agassiz among the palms and rainbow colored fishes of the Amazon. I did not mean to tell you any more about these outcasements of the tropics but how can I help it when they are so entertaining?

Since I last wrote we have been led into the secrets of the palm tree's heart—the palm, loftiest, most aspiring the woman, the poet of trees. It seems, after all, to be an enormous variety of genes, as the fibers of the trunk, and vennings, and divisions of the leaves will show. Prof. Agassiz, with his usual infectious enthusiasm, explained the economy of nature in so arranging the broad and crowning palm leaves upon their stems that each should receive the utmost possible share of all surrounding influences—sun, air, etc. He described picturesquely the folds of the flutings beneath the scar left by fallen stems of years before. He had looked about and thought if architecture had first been developed in a tropical region we should have had, not Corinthian and Gothic columns, but something in which palm vegetation might perpetuate that beauty of nature which is so impressive everywhere. And the decorations of these lofty arches were as exquisite as their symmetry. Everywhere clung trailing vines, orchides with large white flowers, deliciously fragrant and the bananas stand superb with their drooping crimson blossoms.

It is interesting fact in chemistry that some times where two ingredients form a combination, the same results can be produced by the withdrawal of one and the substitution of another ingredient. We find the same law in vegetable life. At the North our fruit trees, pears, apples, cherries, etc., are broadly classed in one family. It is the rose family. In the Amazon valley the rose does not exist, but the fruits which correspond with ours are also of one family, the myrtle.

In closing this lecture Professor Agassiz called attention to the practical resources of Brazil, which are strikingly numerous—ornamental woods, richly perfumed oils, ropes of palm fibers, strong and light, and now used in the English navy, medical plants, dye woods and fruits to which our importations from Havana are mere stunted refuse. He had seen at Para a display of a hundred and seventeen valuable varieties of wood, collected within a space of half a square mile. Yet there is no saw mill in the valley, the trees are hewed with hatchets into inch boards. He trusted that some of our Maine lumber men and our trading ships would be tempted to visit the valley of the Amazon and develop its wonderful resources.

Many tropical fishes are beautifully striped, spotted and colored. One has broad, black plaids upon a golden ground, one has each scale variegated with yellow, blue and orange, so that the combined effect, when it darts through the water, is indescribably brilliant. Some are red, some bright green, and some have purple or crimson stripes and spots. They also have often curious appendages about the nose, elongated jaws, or nostrils, or fringes of feelers that resemble English whiskers. One fish has so short an upper jaw that the strong teeth with which the lower jaw is provided have no corresponding ones to meet them. This creature has feelers some feet in length, which it can protrude like a fishing rod, and thus, it lies hid in the mud, sees its prey and drops it into the waiting mouth below. One family, the Callichthys, has the power of scorching so much water as enables it to leave the river and travel for miles upon land. Professor Agassiz has seen them at this distance, and has even known of their making their way up the rough bark of trees. A gentleman, our Consul at Surinam, wrote him that with the same shot he had brought down a parrot and one of these fishes.

They build a nest something like that of the stickle back, but larger, and of coarser materials. Here they deposit eggs and sit upon them. An other family collect in the trunks of trees. A hollow log has been sent him, in which seven of these fishes, of good size, had crowded themselves, they were so closely packed that he was obliged to split the log in order to remove them, and he could not yet understand how they ever moved about in such a close mass. Of one family of fish the fat has the property of disorganizing the flesh of any animal that feeds upon it, and sometimes produces an eruption. The Indians take advantage of this to produce the bright yellow spots which we often see upon green parrots. They feed the birds upon the fat of this fish, and the eruption thereby produced changes its feathers. There are in our cabinet a number of parrots, which we had classified as of different species on account of these yellow markings, which we now find to be a mere product of the ingenuity of the savages.

One variety of fish grows to a great size, it is often fifteen feet in length, and is the best of the Amazon valley, forming the principal food of the Indians. Some of the fish are very formidable and much feared by travelers. They have wide mouths, armed with sharp serrated teeth and will quickly cut a piece from the flesh of any animal. A cow or mule that should fall into the river would be devoured in the space of an hour by these fishes. One family strongly resemble the electrical eel with which we are acquainted, only they are more highly charged with electricity, so that one of these shocks is too much for a man willingly to bear. After three or four strong shocks, the electricity is for a time exhausted, so that the natives, as Humboldt has told, when they undertake to capture these eels, drive mules into the river to receive the first shock of electricity, and afterward secure their prey with comparative ease. In the next lecture we are promised Professor Agassiz' theory of the origin of fishes, and something also of the reptiles and birds of Brazil.—Boston Correspondence Springfield Republican.

Speaking (apropos of fast living) of the death of Simeon Draper of New York, from paralysis, a correspondent of an exchange says

Paralysis, softening of the brain, loss of the use of the lower limbs, apoplexy, now so common among the prominent and active men of this city shows the peril of our style of living—constant business and social excitement, and the unhealthy modes of living among us. There is probably not another city on the continent where men grow old so fast. Men scarcely thirty years of age bear the marks of sixty. A New York congregation of men is peculiar for the great number of middle aged persons who have bald spots on their heads. A man can wear out his nerves, exhaust his strength, and produce premature decay, as easily as a spendthrift can squander his fortune. A fortune is easily made in this city. But if made on the high pressure principle, a man pays his health or his life for it.

Women in Kansas.—A. D. Richardson in a letter to the New York Tribune, Leavenworth, Kansas, says

"The Kansas Constitution compels every educational institution supported by the State to offer equal facilities to both sexes. And a law worthy of being written in golden letters, authorizes women of eighteen and upwards to vote on every question in district school meetings, and makes them eligible to all offices in school boards. In some districts they do not vote—in others they turn out en masse. Many are elected to offices and fill them with great zeal and practical wisdom. I learn of one district where a lady drew plans, obtained proposals and let the contract for a new school house and is the leading spirit of the Board. Nowhere do I hear a single complaint against the practical workings of the law."

Woman's Blushes.—Miss Pew on seeing just swept him as he entered, and with the same movement she turned away her fair head and blushing cheek toward the window. This blushing and averted cheek is one of the universal receptions that have puzzled many a sensitive man. It is a sign of shy love, it is an act of gentle aversion. Our mode of interpretation, it is simple and judicious, whichever it happens to be we go and take it for the other.—Cor. Ex. Ed.

People and Pigmies.—In England people are largely in the majority over pigs—five people to one porker. In the United States though we talk of a scarcity of hogs of all the shoats were equally divided we should find ourselves every man, woman, boy, girl and baby of us, with four pigs apiece.

One thousand members have been added to the order of Good Templars in New Hampshire the past year, and it now numbers over 5 000.

Singular Flowers

The vegetable kingdom is full of wonders, and although botanists profess to have long since told us all that is worth knowing about it, is continually greeting us with new surprises. Bayard Taylor lately described a flower discovered by him at the summit of the Rocky Mountains during his recent visit to that region—a flower so purely beautiful that we all cried out with admiration on discovering it. It was found flourishing in water so intensely cold that it aimed at made one scream. It is called the Alpine Primrose but as the writer likewise could neither consign nor promise us that we all may see with it. But it still serves remarkably to plant so described by a Boston paper—"The truest flower of Russia." This Primrose he thinks it looks on the face of it a myth." If the description is truthful, the production is certainly one of the most curious forms of vegetable life. It is thus described

This wonderful plant up rather flower, is only found on the northern boundaries of Siberia, where the snow is eternal. It was discovered in 1863 by Count Somnoskoff, the eminent Russian botanist, who was ennobled by the Czar for his discovery. Bursting from the frozen snow on the first day of the year it grows to the height of three feet and flowers on the third day remains in flower for twenty four hours and then dissolves itself into its original element—stem leaves and flowers being of the finest snow. The stalk is about one inch in diameter, the leaves three in number and in the broadest part are an inch and a half in width, and are covered with infinitesimal cones of snow, they grow only on one side of the stalk, to the north curving gracefully in the same direction.

The flower, when fully expanded, is in shape a perfect star, the petals are three inches in length, half an inch wide in the broadest parts and tapering sharply to a point. These are also interlaced one with another in a beautiful manner forming the most delicate basket of frost work that the eye ever beheld, for truly this is frost work the most wonderful. The anthers are five in number and on the third day after the birth of the "flower of snow," are to be seen on the extremities thereof, twinkling and glittering like diamonds, the seed of this wonderful flower is about as large as a pin's head. The old botanist says when first he beheld this flower, 'I was dumb with astonishment, filled with wonderment which gave way to joy the most ecstatic, on beholding this wonderful work of nature, this remarkable phenomenon of snow. To see this flower springing from the snowy desert, born of its own component atoms! I touched the stem of one lightly, but it fell at my touch and a morsel of snow only remained in my hand." Gathering some of the flowers in snow, in order to preserve the little diamond like seeds, he hied to St Petersburg with to him, the greatest prize of his lifetime. All through the year they were kept in snow, and on the first day of the year following the Court of St Petersburg were delighted with the bursting forth of the wonderful "frost flower." Our friends in Boston succeeded in obtaining several of the seeds, and all through the Summer and Autumn they have been imbedded in snow brought at great expense from the White Mountains and the coast of Labrador and they now have the most unbounded satisfaction and pleasure in announcing that all signs are favorable to the realization of their fondest hopes, the production of the "flower of snow." The snow and ice are in a large refrigerator, with the thermometer several degrees below zero, and the solid bed of snow has already begun to show little fissures and a slight bulging in the center, unmistakable evidences of the forthcoming of the great phenomenon.

Fast Life in New York.—The New York correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette has the following.

There was a day when it was said that
"Vice is a monster of such frightful mien,
As to be hated needs but to be seen

I always did think about this as Major Pendennis thought about the sorrow of Calypso—dum ne pousint se consoler—that it was a poetical fiction, but certainly if Pope could see his bugbear nowadays done up in the latest style of Parisian art with all its depravity hidden under a balmoral and a rose walking skirt, he would hardly have the audacity to write what would be considered sheer nonsense. There is a good deal that is better hidden, there is no doubt, but, compared with its antique manners of the Old World, New York is still so young in iniquity that it has hardly had time for that thorough development for which gossiping people are so willing to give it credit. It has made strides, and rapid ones. People have had their heads turned by the immense wealth which has flowed in upon them since the establishment of high duties and the inflation of paper currency, and each year they have gone in, vieing with each other in extravagance and magnificence, until they have reached a point where they cannot sustain themselves by ordinary means. What with operas, dancing, theater going, sailing, driving, riding and racing, the head of the New Yorker who gets into the vortex of fast life is literally kept in a perfect whirl. One excitement follows another in such rapid succession that excitement becomes at length the normal condition of New York nature.

This is pretty much the life of the wealthy and the fashionable everywhere. I do not say noble, for shrewd people are no longer noble, outside of their own families, when they are poor. But in New York they go one step ahead of them, and this step leads to New York fast life a charm of which Europe cannot boast. There, young ladies are brought out and kept, at least nominally under the eye of a careful matron. Here they come out by themselves, and need no chaperonnie. Inside of the license given to young girls is most astonishing, and the absolute confidence that parents and guardians have in their ability to resist temptation says volumes for their purity. They ride alone, they drive alone, they receive alone, and they walk alone from early in the forenoon till after dusk, with all the freedom of village life. In no city in the civilized world is the intercourse between men and women, married and single, so perfectly untrammeled as it is in New York. That this should have its necessary effect upon manners and conversation is not to be wondered at. Both are fast getting to be what might be termed uncommon easy. Let us hope that it is as the old proverb says, that "laughing tooth don't bite," and it is at least charitable to presume, where women are so frank and so open, that the worst is on the surface. It is the still waters which run deep, and the most demure people who often require the most watching. If one were to believe one-half of what one hears in New York, one would believe a great deal. But as those who really do know are gifted with that discretion which accompanies wisdom, and as those who don't know are very apt to invent, we may fairly conclude that the New York devils are not half so bad as are painted.

The Territory of Wyoming.—The Platte Valley Journal, a new paper published in Nebraska, gives us the following items of interest regarding the Territory of Wyoming.

The Union Pacific Railroad will be completed early in May next to the western boundary of Nebraska—a distance of four hundred miles. The road then passes through the rich mineral Territory of Wyoming. Running along Lodge Pole Creek it approaches the mountains at Cheyenne Pass. Bounded on the West by the Rocky Mountains North by the Territory of Montana, East by Nebraska and South by Colorado. The resources of Wyoming are yet undeveloped, but enough is known of its immense deposits of gold silver, copper and coal to warrant us in saying that within one year from this time it will possess a population as large as that of Montana. The veins of coal alone will supply the U P R R with fuel for ages to come. These veins are already being worked in Colorado. At Boulder City north to Denver there are five veins of a superior quality of coal the largest being fifteen and the smallest five feet thick. At the crossing of the North Platte there is a coal strata among the rocks on the north side of the river. The other precious metals will be found in equal richness. This Territory is bound to be settled up with a thriving population and in our opinion the early Spring will see a heavy tide of emigration setting into this Territory.

Yankee Notions in Palestine.—The Philadelphia Inquirer, noticing the arrival of the American colony at Jaffa says. This emigration to the Holy City will be but the beginning of the big gun which will populate Jerusalem with a dread fully smart people. They will introduce to the benighted Asiatics, subsoil plows mowing machines, steam engines and the electric telegraph. They will transform the appearance of the Holy City. They may put a cotton factory on Mount Moriah, and run a sawmill with the water of the Brook Kedron. They will plant Indian corn on the Mount of Olives, and perhaps pumpkins in the Valley of Hinnom. Bean poles will support their leguminous treasures in the Valley of Jehoshaphat. The establishment of a Congregational Church on Mount Zion, and the erection of gas works opposite the Hebrew Gate may be reckoned among the possibilities of this strange emigration, which recompenses the world for the migration always hitherto from the East to the West by sending a few pioneers back again.

The circulation of the North American Review is 2,000, of Every Saturday, 10,000, of The Atlantic, 30,000, and of Our Young Folks, nearly 60 000.

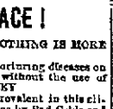
Dr Gibbon's Dispensary,


617 KEARNEY STREET,
NEAR COMMERCIAL,
San Francisco Established in 1854,
for the treatment of Seminal and Sexual Diseases such as Gonorrhea, Gleet Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency etc also Diseases of 20 years standing and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. To this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying diseases—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them home hastily to Doctor Gibbon a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any other injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities publishing their skill on curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of horrid symptoms unless combated by scientific and local measures, viz Sallow countenance dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noises like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, unsteadiness of the hands, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, foul tongue, fetid breath, cough, consumption, night sweats, insomnia and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained should apply immediately, either in person or by letter and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

Doctor GIBBON is a regular graduate, and will give to each patient a written instrument, handing himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.
